THE NEW AND THE OLD WOMAN.

There is no end to all that we now hear about the "new woman," this comprehensive term being used to include a great many distinct varieties of the one type, such as the masculine woman, the bicycle-riding woman, the dress reform woman, the political woman, and numerous others. There are some people, however, old-fashioned and primitive in their notions, whose thoughts sometimes turn to the truly feminine woman, and who wonders if she will really go out of existence, or be lost in the flowing tide of advancement and emancipation. Some people argue that this type of womanhood is becoming rare; but we venture to think that they are mistaken. The truly feminine woman is not obtrusive. She does not challenge attention as an aggressive force in any public arena; nor does she pose as a model of any fin de siècle mode. But she has her appointed place, her "sphere," it would be called to-day, and knows how to keep it, and if we search for her there. Her charm is potent, but it is exercised quietly, and her presence wins by its innate modesty, gentle bearing, tactful sympathy, and unconscious dignity. There are more of her amongst us to-day than cynical people prefer to think there are. The truly feminine woman is loved, admired and respected for herself, whatever be her position in life, her age or her claim to beauty.

AMERICAN COMMENTS ON CANADA.

American newspapers are a perennial source of amusement. They are much given to making comments on the affairs of Canada which are so wide of the truth, yet are said with such solemnity, such an air of superior wisdom, and such dogmatic positiveness, as to provoke hilarity. The U.S. newspaper commentator in Canada is really a very "amusing cuss."

The intimacy of their knowledge is well illustrated by articles being published on the recent report of the Minister of Justice having resigned, which are accompanied by portraits of that official's father, Sir Charles Tupper, our representative in England! This is rather hard on Sir Hibbert, who, we fondly imagined, and who, doubtless, himself thought that he had made such an impression on Americans by his very able and vigorous handling of the Behring Sea question at the Paris conference—where he proved "one too many" for their diplomats—that they would have known him, at least, not to be his own father. Imagine the gall of men discussing a Canadian political incident, such as the rumored resignation of an Ottawa minister, while yet so ignorant of our affairs as to suppose our agent in London to be our Minister of Justice at the capital! It is really very funny.—Trade Review.

CANADA would seem to be doing fairly well with the first portion of the consignment of twelve tons of winter creamery butter with which it is hoped to establish a reputation in British markets. This first shipment, which came by way of Liverpool, is now in the hands of the country dealers, and though not quite as fresh as one could wish, is well spoken of, and will, it is hoped, show a good return when the reports of sales come in. If Canada is to do any good here in the butter trade, she must, of course, be prepared to meet the excellent Australasian butters now finding their way into British favor at 80s. to 85s.—Canadian Gazette.

BUSINESS was never in a condition to suit everybody. Legislation can't help the man who won't work, or the man who prefers to growl at everyone else, rather than to make an honest industrious effort himself. Legislation cannot prevent the daily demand for bread and butter, and the first duty of every man is to earn that. The times always improve when all hands go to work with a will, drop grumbling, hunting for the bright things of life rather than its unpleasant features.

Football.

Association football is now the rage. Everyone visiting the football ground between the hours of 7 and 8 p.m., will see a small crowd of about thirty or forty engaged in it, while knowing little or nothing about the game. In the interest of the club we would suggest that the elected officers take a little more responsibility on the field, and see that the game is played properly. There is the making of a good team in Qu'Appelle, but as long as the game is played in defiance of all rules, everybody playing off side and on side and every other side, they never can be successful. As it is now, everyone knows and manufactures rules to suit himself, while we question very much if there are more than half a dozen who really are conversant with them. We write thus as well wishers of the club, not as fault finders, or wishing to throw dirty water on it, and hope our strictures will be accepted in the spirit they are written. "Too many cooks spoil the broth."

Edgeley Echoes.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.) Some of your readers will probably have seen the ridiculous letter, supposed to have been written from Long Lake, which was published in last week's Standard. It is a wonder Mr. McInnis would allow the public at large to see the ignorance of his so-called supporter, but we will take it for granted that he has been whispering in the ears of the disinterested how, if they would be so wise as to send him to Ottawa, he would bring the government to time; how he would give them lots of seed when needed; how he would spend Senator Forley's salary; how cheap he'd make Mr. Davin drink weak green tea when thirsty; but he forgets a very important "how," and that is how is he going to get there? Surely he does not imagine that the farmers—I mean to say the majority of farmers—are so ignorant as his Long Lake correspondent, who imagines the present member—yes, and the future member for Western Assiniboia, rules the Canadian empire. We can inform him that the majority of the farmers know that Mr. Davin has his say—and a very powerful say—but they also know that he has only one vote, and one vote does not carry when two are against it.

All persons wishing to breed good colts would benefit themselves by not promising first comes till they have seen the Edgeley stud and viewed his last season's produce.

A question of law is likely to arise between two of our worthy farmers. The strong, blustery winds have carried a considerable portion of one farmer's summer fallow on to the farm of the other, who daily drags away as if nothing was the matter, only he had a remarkably fine seed-bed. Is it fair to crop this other man's soil, even if the Almighty does drift it about? And what would be the verdict, supposing there is a crop, if the same power carries not only the soil back again but the crop also?

[We have omitted that portion of this correspondence bearing on the school question, as we are of opinion that our correspondence, like many others, takes an erroneous view of the question, especially referring to the matter of interference with the rights of the people.—Ed.]

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"There's a chiel among ye takin' notes, An' faith he'll prout 'em."

There is, I believe, in the Northwest, or rather in the district of Qu'Appelle, a great prejudice against fall planting. Well, I will give to my readers my own experience in the matter, and as we all know that a hand of practice is worth a bushel of theory, the experience I am about to set forth will, I hope, go far to convince the sceptical that fall planting is right enough, that is, if the planting be rightly done, a matter of great moment; indeed, the result is governed by the way in which this operation is performed. But to proceed to my experience in the matter of fall planting. Last October Mr. Bartley Gibson was good enough to entrust to me the tender mercies of the planting of some twenty speaking, two hundred trees and bushes, and although the weather was, during the latter part of the time, which ran into the first week in November, what sailors designate "dirty," the work went merrily on, though the wind at times was keen enough to shave a man. Now, as I had been told over and over again that fall planting was absolutely no good, that planting as such a time was wasting time and material, I must admit I started upon the work on Mr. Gibson's ground with some misgivings, but (what a lot there is in that little word sometimes!) such misgivings have now completely melted away like snow before a chimney, for the plants, which included artemisia, maple, wolfwillow, black thorn, raspberry and gooseberry, are all in a fair way towards healthy leafage.

There has lately been considerable agitation in Scotland about the threatened destruction of the well known Falls of Foyers. This beautiful waterfall is undoubtedly the loveliest in the British Isles, and many persons who have wandered far in other lands still revert to it as of surpassing beauty. A body calling itself the British Aluminium Company has, from the station of a London (English) contemporary, arranged to purchase the estate of Foyers on which the falls are situated, and proposes to use the water power to produce electricity, and thereby to extract aluminium from clay; for this purpose it plans to deflect the river Foyers from its present channel and lead water in an eight foot pipe to the shores of Loch Ness.

Those who contemplate planting on Arbor Day can procure nice young maples at the Plant and Seed Depot; they will be right there from the 1st to the 3rd of May, the last day being Arbor Day.

All who wish to plant on Arbor Day. Will do right well to make a trip my way; It is not far, a few steps only, say. So come along boys and celebrate the day; And when you see the verdant leaves expand, And shading beauty over your fertile land, And 'neath their welcome shade your ease you take You will to many pleasures new awake.

Poplar Plains Paragraphs.

Our weather prophet promises parts of May an June wet and a good crop. Long life to him!

The farmers are all satisfied with the amount of grain received from the government, leaving out the petty municipal grant amongst some of the best.

The majority of farmers in this district are about through seeding. There was a man of renown through our district last week, who was slightly elevated but still in the ring. Look out for B. B. B. (Bain is cheap and our hens are laying well of late. The patient, affectionate hen with her brood of chickens, will tell them in a few weeks that they must scratch for themselves.

The trustees got left about their teacher, who after promising to come failed to put in an appearance. He must have felt in with a big bite.

Our wants are many, and if told Would muster many a score; And were each wish a mint of gold We still would long for more.

A FAMOUS INSTITUTE.

The Essex Institute at Salem and Its Historical Treasures. In 1887 the Essex institute moved at last into what it might call a home of its own, says a writer in the Boston Herald. On the estate adjoining Plummer Hall, Salem, and facing on the same street, stood the building erected for Tucker Daland, one of Salem's well known merchants in 1851. This afterward became the property of Mr. Daland's son-in-law, the late Benjamin Cox, M. D., and from his heirs the institute was enabled to purchase the land and house by means of a fund bequeathed by the late William Burley Howes. The building being a large square brick mansion, with high ceilings, rooms, was well adapted to the few alterations which the institute found necessary to make, and a fund of $15,000, contributed by friends, rendered it possible to make them. A bridge connects the new building with Plummer Hall, a portion of which is still used for the storage of certain papers and books, and communication between the two buildings is had without going out of doors.

Since the completion of its new home the membership of the institute has increased very rapidly, and the number of members admitted during the past year has been unusually large, while the visitors' book shows by the number of names and the many localities from which they are registered how widely the fame of the institute has extended.

The meetings of the institute are held twice in each month, on the first and third Mondays. During the winter months papers are read on various subjects, and from time to time lecture courses are presented, many of them being free to the public.

Among the collections perhaps the books and pamphlets are of the most value, for here one finds books whose titles are not seen in the catalogues of public libraries except in a few cases. In a fireproof room in the rear of the museum are kept many valuable manuscripts, such as family papers, Revolutionary documents, autographs, commissions, sea letters and the like. Up stairs in the southwest corner is found the room devoted to town histories, genealogies and historical publications. Adjoining is the library of biography and travel, then the works of Essex county authors and the files of local newspapers and beyond a room largely devoted to the classical library of the late Judge D. A. White, first president of the institute. There is also a well selected collection of works on art, 600 volumes and upward of what is known as the "China" library and the library of the late Augustus Story. Periodicals and journals of the present are always here for perusal.

On the third floor are valuable scientific books and exchanges and the theological works and directories. The collection of directories and of newspaper files is very full and valuable, there being full files of many papers which date back to the beginning of the century or even earlier. In the library collection are some 400 logbooks, most of them relating to the period of Salem's commercial supremacy and some detailing the actions of Salem's famous privateers in the Revolution and the war of 1812.

The museum of the institute contains many old and rare bits of furniture and furnishings, clothing worn by more or less well known people, samples of old uniforms, swords, characteristic objects from the old churches and houses, fire buckets, rare old prints and paintings on glass, pictures of old Salem ships, silhouettes, old armor and weapons, marine models and ancient nautical instruments, models of seals, old kitchen utensils, old pianos and spinets, with other musical instruments and other things valuable for rarity or antiquity. One object that visitors often inquire for and children especially delight in is the famous cherry spoon containing 113 tiny silver spoons.

A Matter of Mere Follies.

"Well," said Mr. Sorkins, "I've quit worrying about the fate of the country and the destiny of our present social system and things."

"Have you solved all the problems?"

"No, I haven't solved any of 'em. But my daughter Minerva Jane will be at work on her graduation essay pretty soon, and I guess I may as well make my mind easy and find out all about it when she gets through."—Washington Star.

NOTES OF THE DOMINION.

HAPPENINGS OF INTEREST PICKED UP HERE AND THERE.

Gulled From the Writings of the Dominion and Condensed for the Information of the Reading Public.

Robert McEachern, of Charlottetown, P. E. I., suicided.

Newfoundland delegates have received no offer from Canada.

It is stated on good authority that Gov. Schultz will dismiss the Manitoba ministry.

The factory of W. C. McDonald, the "tobacco king," at Montreal, was destroyed by fire.

There is said to be a split in Dominion government circles over the Saskatchewan branch railway.

The protest against the election of Dr. Dewar as mayor of Windsor was dismissed by Judge Horne.

The receipts from the recent Canadian horse show, held in Toronto, exceeds the expenses by about $4,000.

Geo. W. Wiggins, township clerk of Rawdon, Ont., died a few days ago at Cardinal, Ont., after a long illness.

A. F. Gault, the cotton millionaire of Montreal has donated $1,000 for the erection of a Church of England college in that city.

Charles O'Neill, of Thurlow, Ont., died the other day, aged 32. He was the fifth member of the family to die from consumption.

The Hon. Timothy W. Anglin, of Toronto, has been appointed clerk of the surrogate court in succession to the late Sir James L. Robinson, Bart.

James Mansell, aged twenty-one, of London, Ont., was killed by a Grand Trunk train near Windsor the other day. He was standing a ride when the fatality happened.

The body of Robert Claxton, a machinist of Toronto, who disappeared from his home a couple of weeks ago was found in the bay a few days ago. It is supposed to be a case of suicide, in consequence of ill health.

It is understood that Sir Oliver Mowat will shortly leave on a trip to England and the continent for the benefit of his health. His trip will extend over some months, and he will be accompanied by some members of his family.

Colbert McEachern, aged 23 years, of Afton Road, Charlottetown, suicided recently by cutting his throat with a razor. He committed the deed upstairs in his home, where he deliberately went for the purpose. He lived four or five hours after.

Robert F. Meredith and James L. O'Brien were arrested in Montreal recently, charged with having converted to their own use 1,000 shares of Bank of Commerce stock, which had been left in trust with them by a widow named Mrs. Morris. Bail was accepted in $10,000 each.

A car containing horses, wagon, plows, seeds and tools, left Toronto recently for the new experimental farm in West Algoma, in charge of Charles Ogg, of Hamilton, who will manage the farm. Building operations will be commenced at once, and crops of wheat, barley and oats will be sown.

William Farley, of Toronto, watchman for Robert Simpson, accused of being implicated in the recent burning of the latter's big dry goods store was discharged recently by the police magistrate. The case against the three other men under arrest in connection with the fire is believed to be weak.

W. H. Theodore Durant, in custody at San Francisco on a charge of murdering Miss Williams and Miss Lamont, whose case is attracting world-wide attention, turns out to be a Toronto boy. Durant was born in that city about twenty-four years ago, and is said to have worked there as a drug apprentice for a short time. The family then went west and took up their residence in San Francisco.

Investigation into the alleged misconduct of the Vancouver police commenced recently. Chief McLaren was in the rack the other afternoon. He denied the insinuation that he wrongly accepted bribes from the British navy to look after sailors and marines, and denied that the officers forced fast women to be their witnesses under penalty of being raided. The investigation promises to last several weeks.

AND THE RAIN CAME.

Great Was the Fall Thereof at Fort Worth, Texas.

A portion of the roof of the tabernacle of Fort Worth, Texas, where evangelist Moody was addressing 10,000 people the other night gave way and many of the congregation were injured, one at least seriously. Texas has needed rain for some time, so Evangelist Moody called upon his audience of 8,000 Christians in the afternoon to pray fervently that the flood gates might be opened. That night when the tabernacle was crowded with 10,000 from Fort Worth and surrounding cities, Mr. Moody announced that word had come from several points that rain had fallen. A few minutes later the storm burst upon Fort Worth and torrents of rain fell. Then Mr. Moody gave thanks to God and called upon the congregation to join in singing "Coronation" and "All Hail the Power of Jesus name." The song had surged forth from 10,000 throats, and then a crackling noise was heard, and then the roof sank and the rafters gave way, and the heavy timbers and boards, covered with tar and gravel, came down on a portion of the congregation. There was a panic. Scores upon scores of women fainted; some men lost their heads and piled pell mell over those near them. Mr. Moody grasped the situation. Walking to the middle of the platform he lifted both hands to heaven, moving his arms slowly to and fro. His attitude and coolness stopped the panic and men began to work to rescue those in danger. The wounded were soon taken out and carried to their homes or to the houses near by.

THEFT OF A LARGE SUM.

$22,765 Taken From the First National Bank of Plainfield, N. J.

The directors of the First National bank of Plainfield, N. J., recently announced the theft of $22,765, of which the vaults were robbed. Frank S. Runyon, cashier of the bank, first discovered the loss when closing the vaults the other night. Two packages, one containing $20,000 in new bills of various values from one to one thousand dollars, and another of $1,765 in mutilated bills were missing.

President Charles Potter was notified and the employees of the bank were at once subjected to a severe examination, and the story of the robbery, as given by them, betrays the work of experienced and daring cracksmen, fully equipped with thorough knowledge of their surroundings. On the day of the robbery, as usual, but two clerks remained at their posts in the bank during the noon lunch hour. David N. Runyon, a relative of the cashier, attended at the teller's window, and Albert Vail, a young clerk, was at one of the windows. A strange man with a long list of notes on a large sheet of paper, entered and engaged Vail in conversation about the notes. Vail recalls that the paper was held in such a manner as to completely shut off his view of the passage by his wicket, and it is thought that the bank thief passed under cover of the paper into the inner rooms and then obtained access to the vault, or else that he entered by a rear hall way door which is known to have been left open. The bank employees remember that during the last two weeks a number of well dressed strangers have made frequent visits to the bank and made many plausible enquiries, which it is believed, were calculated to familiarize them with the workings of the institution, and one of these men drove up to the bank and called out Frederick Haines, a clerk, not more than twenty minutes before the robbery is supposed to have been made. The man who talked to Vail has never been seen in the bank before, but it is thought that the thief obtained access to the vaults under the protection of the man, he must have been thoroughly familiar with the director's room and the vault, and have known that the door to the director's room is often left open. The robbery was kept a close secret at first, and private detectives engaged in the case. State Bank Examiner Stone, however, had a conference with the directors, and advised immediate publication of the loss, and notification to the police authorities. Superintendent Byrnes was consulted and New York Central office detectives were put in charge of the matter. The First National Bank has been in existence for many years, and its board of directors is composed of some of the most prominent men in Plainfield. A large number of the leading business men of the town are among its depositors. The capital is $200,000, and there is a surplus of $60,000. Albert Vail, the clerk, has been in the employ of the bank for twenty years. He is a married man and is fully trusted. Frank S. Runyon, the cashier, has been in the service of the bank for nearly twenty-five years and is one of the best known substantial business men of the city. President Charles Potter is the president of the large Potter Printing Press works.

HORRIBLE HOMICIDE.

A Destitute Invalid Slaughtered With an Axe—A Mystery to Be Solved.

Louis Pomeroy, a French Canadian, thirty years old, was hacked to death by an axe a few days ago in the city of Vancouver. Pomeroy was known to the whole city through his misfortunes. A few months ago he was nearly killed to death by a crazy drunk. Doctors saved him, but he was again stricken with heart disease. Destitute, out of work, disheartened, he applied for a pass to the city council that he might go to his home in Quebec, where he could be cared for until he died, and he buried by his people. He went to live in a shack on False Creek, Vancouver city, with a man named Andrews. His friends wrote to his parents: "Louis is grievously sick; send $75 that he may go home." Louis' parents were very poor, but the case was urgent. They raised $75 and sent it to their son. Immediately afterwards the young French-Canadian disappeared, but not until a week had elapsed did his shack companion notify the police. The police told him to find where Pomeroy had gone. Next morning Andrews reported that he found the horribly mutilated remains of the missing man only twenty feet from the shack. The sight was a ghastly one; the body and head had been brutally hacked by an axe, which was lying beside the corpse. The horribly disfigured corpse had been raised on a stone and an attempt made to burn the body by kindling a fire around it. Rain had evidently put the fire out and the attempt of the savage homicide to destroy all traces of the murder had been frustrated by the hand of providence. One man who lived near Pomeroy disappeared from Vancouver a week ago. It will be interesting, however, to hear the evidence of Andrews at the coroner's inquest. How those living directly at the scene of the murder could be ignorant of the crime for a week must, be explained to the satisfaction of the coroner.

China's Flag.

The flag of China is one of the gayest among ensigns. The body is a pale yellow. On the upper left-hand corner is a small red sun. Looking intently at the sun is a fierce Chinese dragon. The dragon's body is a brilliant red and white. His back is green. He is standing on his two hind paws and his left forefoot. His feet are five-toed and slightly hooked. His long five-forked tail stretches away in the rear. The dragon's neck is arched back. His mouth is wide open, and he looks as he were about to try to swallow the red sun. The Japanese flag has a white body, and in the centre is a large red sun, with rays radiating in all directions. About 1,000 years ago the Chinese made war on Japan and prepared a grand invasion. To symbolize their intended victory they adopted the flag of today. They took the sun of Japan and made it small, and put it in front of the dragon's mouth to express the idea that the Chinese dragon would devour the Japanese. It happened, however, that the Chinese fleet, conveying an army of 100,000 men, was wrecked on its way to Japan by a great storm, and all but 3,000 perished. The spite that ugly beginning in the use of the flag, and recent events seem to indicate that it is still a hoodoo.

Food Distressed Him and It Began to Have a Weakening Effect on the Heart—Many Remedies Failed Before a Cure Was Found.

From the Canoe, N. S. Breeze.

While newspaper men are called upon in their capacity as publishers to print from week to week words of praise spoken in favor of proprietary medicines, it is not often that the editor himself feels it his duty to say a good word on behalf of any of these preparations. And yet if a newspaper man has actually found benefit from the use of a proprietary medicine, why should he not make it known to his readers, and thus perhaps point out to some of them the road to renewed health. The editor of the Breeze believes it his duty to say a few words of praise in favor of a remedy that has proved an inestimable boon to him, and to say them without any solicitation on the part of the proprietors of the medicine, who as a matter of fact, had no reason to know that he was ailing or was using their medicine. For several years the editor of the Breeze had been subject to that distressing complaint, dyspepsia, and only those who have been similarly troubled can know how much misery this trouble entails. He had but a very little appetite, and what he did eat caused an unpleasant feeling of fullness, and made him feel languid and heavy, often causing intense pain in the stomach only relieved by vomiting up the food which he had taken. He was also troubled with palpitation of the heart, brought on no doubt by the dyspepsia. Numerous remedies alleged to cure dyspepsia were tried, but without success, and the trouble was approaching a chronic state. At the suggestion of a friend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were tried and relief soon followed their use, and after a few boxes had been taken the editor was able to assert positively that he had been cured of the dyspepsia by this remedy that has proved so great a blessing to mankind. To anyone troubled with this complaint he would strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. To newspaper men particularly they will be found just the thing to impart health and vigor to the whole system and enable them to pursue their work free from that tired, despondent feeling so prevalent among the craft. The editor of the Breeze firmly believes that what they have done for him they will do for others, and he gives them his hearty and unsolicited endorsement.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are an unfailing cure for all troubles resulting from poverty of the blood or shattered nerves, and where given a fair trial they never fail in cases like that above related. Sold by all dealers, or sent postpaid at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., or Schenectady, N. Y. CONDUCTOR SNIDER.

A Remarkable Railroad Man to Visit Manitoba and the Northwest.

Reference has been made to Conductor Snider, who is to visit Manitoba and the Northwest Territories in May, that he is an evangelist; this it is pointed out is incorrect. He is a railway conductor of the Grand Trunk railway, running between Toronto and Stratford. He is, however, an evangelist in this sense, that he preaches nearly every Sunday somewhere; and he has occupied some of the leading pulpits of Ontario. As a lecturer, he is said to be a great success and in great demand in that province.

During the month of May he intends taking a trip to the Pacific Coast, preaching and lecturing along the line of the C. P. R. He will spend three or four days in Winnipeg, preaching on Sunday morning, May 5th, in Zion church, and that evening in Grace church, (a railroad sermon). On the following Monday evening he will lecture in Grace church, and on the Tuesday evening in Zion church. His other engagements are Carberry, May 10th; Portage la Prairie, May 12th and 13th; Brandon, May 19th and 20th. In the Northwest Territories he will visit Mooseomin on May 21st; Medicine Hat, May 23rd; Calgary, May 26th and 27th; Banff, May 28th. In British Columbia the programme includes Donald, May 29th; Kamloops, May 31st; Vancouver, June 2nd and 3rd; New Westminster, June 5th; Nanaimo, June 6th and 7th; Victoria, June 9th, 10th and 11th. On the way to Winnipeg he will speak on April 25th and 26th at North Bay; May 1st at Port Arthur; May 2nd at Fort William, and May 3rd at Rat Portage. His lecture on "Life on the Ray and the People we Meet," is characterized as a very interesting entertainment. A favorable comment is given in these words: "Conductor Snider is one of the best delineators of character in Canada. His impersonations of odd people are inimitable. He makes the lecture enjoyable, laughable and instructive."

ONE MILLION CAPITAL.

A New Lumber Company to Operate on Lake of the Woods Limits.

A lumber company for the purpose of manufacturing American logs at route point on the Lake of the Woods is being organized at Duluth with a capital of $1,000,000. The organizers are William Doory, of the firm of Kehi & Doory, Duluth; George A. Baird, Ottawa; Timothy Crawell, Boston; H. Howard, Montreal; and M. A. Ferguson, Duluth, and they expect to have everything in shape to commence business Aug. 1. There are at present only two lumber companies doing business at the Lake of the Woods, and as they own extensive timber limits on the Canadian side they have quit buying logs in Minnesota and a move in this direction has been found necessary. Edward Buckley president of the Manistee & Northeastern railroad, and other Michigan parties are interested and will aid materially towards making the new enterprise a success.

The Jury Disagreed.

The Grand Trunk railway conspiracy case, on trial in Montreal in which Conductors Mulligan, Defeis and Tamblin were accused of "knocking down" fares, ended in a disagreement of the jury. Eleven were for acquittal, but one man held out for conviction. The case will have to be retried at the June term of the court of Queen's bench.

TORTURE UNTOLD

WAS SUFFERED.

A Well Known Gentleman in the District of Algoma Writes About His Sufferings.

GENTLEMEN,—About three months ago I was all used up with Rheumatism, suffering more than torture from it frequently. I took three bottles of your valuable medicine, Burdock Blood Bitters, and now feel all O. K. again. Some six years ago I took a few bottles of B. B. B., and found it the best medicine I had ever used. I had the best of health until this attack of Rheumatism, and now I am glad to say that B. B. B. has made me as sound as a dollar.

A. MC DONACHIE,
Kenabutch P. O., Ont.

Called Them Traitors.

Every member of the Irish parliamentary of London, Eng., has received a copy of a recent issue of the Irish Bulletin, published in New York, and containing a marked paragraph denouncing Timothy M. Healy and the members of the Irish party in the house of Commons who have voted with him on certain occasions, as "Traitors to the cause of Ireland." The publication has caused great indignation among the members of the Irish party in the house of commons, and one of the number, James O'Connor, in a letter complaining that a London paper republished the paragraph, winds up with this characteristic Irish utterance: "I do not propose to discuss in the newspapers the application of the word 'Traitor' to Mr. Healy or to any of the Irish members of parliament who believe that the member for Louth has, in the main, been justified in the course he has pursued. I will also say that the language of the Bulletin is in its reckless violence, thoroughly American of the Bowery bravo type."

A number of papers both in London and in the provinces are printing the following extract from an editorial in the Irish Republic of New York, and commenting upon it as evidencing the sentiments and tendencies of the Irish element in America. The extracts reads as follows: "Every Irish settlement should have its rifle club, every large city should have a score of them, as by such preparation only can we ever hope to be of any use to Ireland if it should come to open war. And eventually to war it must come, and then one sharp-shooter will be worth a brigade of orators."

Fatal Accident on the Great Northern.

Train No. 1 on the Great Northern, the evening train from the south, when about two miles out from Fargo struck a man who was sitting on the track. He was sitting bent over on his knees partially between the ties and apparently intoxicated. The engineer did not see him until it was too late to stop the train, although he succeeded in slowing up almost to a standstill. The man was thrown to one side of the track. The train was stopped and the unfortunate man taken aboard. He had a pint bottle with him partially filled with alcohol. He wore a suit of working clothes, but had a good suit in a satchel with him. He was apparently seriously injured and Conductor Stahl had the train run back to Fargo and the unfortunate man taken to the hospital, after which the train continued on its way to Grand Forks. Reaching there Mr. Stahl received a telegram stating that the man had just died from his injuries.

—Mr. R. Johnston has sold his trotting mare, May J., to Mr. Steve White, of Vinden.

—A blaze in Hartney on the 26th April, consumed about $25,000 worth of property.

—Seeding in this district is just about completed, and rain is earnestly hoped for shortly.

—A very welcome shower of rain fell early on Wednesday morning. The indications are that more will follow.

—Mr. D. McLeod, representing Mr. Westbrook of Winnipeg, has been in town for the last part of the week.

—A new butcher's shop has been opened in town in the building lately used as such by Mr. G. Needham.

—Mr. Steve White, hotel proprietor, of Vinden, an old Qu'Appelleite, stopped off on his way east on Monday night.

—The steamer Dixon arrived at Port Arthur on the 23rd ult., being the first boat of the season to arrive from an outside port.

—The running horse Twilight is rapidly getting into condition and will no doubt be heard about during the coming season.

—Mr. W. Templeton, representing Miller, Morse & Co., Winnipeg, arrived in town Saturday and resumed his trip west Monday morning.

—Mr. J. Paterson, Winnipeg, Branch Manager of the Commercial Union Assurance Company for Manitoba and the Northwest, was in town on Wednesday.

—In the British House of Commons, Mr. T. W. Russell's bill, providing for the existing temporary regulation closing the drinking saloons in Ireland on Sunday, passed its second reading by a vote of 168 to 69.

—Mr. W. McMichael is importing from Scotland the celebrated thoroughbred stallion, Granite Rock, which he expects will arrive here about May 6th. This will be a good opportunity for breeders to improve their stock.

—Mr. T. Jerrold has started business in the building next to The Progress office. Any person desiring to obtain seeds of all descriptions, also potted flowers, bulbs and roots, will be studying their own interests by giving him a call.

—There are several back yards in town that require attention. It is extraordinary that some parties in every community have to be compelled to clean up every spring. One would think that a desire for their own personal comfort would prompt them to at least cleanliness.

—Medicine Hat has been greatly stirred up during the past week over the losing of a little German girl upon the open prairie. On Friday of last week two little daughters of Mr. L. Stelter, a German settler living at Daumore, were sent out on the prairie towards evening to look for the cows. One girl was lost and every day this week parties of mounted men from Medicine Hat have assisted in the search, which has been most systematic. Thursday a party of thirty-two men on horse back accompanied Sergeant Richards, and a regular organized search was made over the prairie south of the track.

—Messrs. Scott & Johnston shipped a carload of logs from their mill east to Montreal, and a number of cattle will also be shipped from here during the coming week.

—Another consignment of butter, shipped under the auspices of the Canadian Department of Agriculture, has arrived in Liverpool. It is of rather high color and good quality, and brings higher prices than Australian butter.

—The N.Y. Advertiser says: Mrs. Catharine Scott died Sunday afternoon at her home in Brooklyn, N.Y., at the age of 103. She read the papers regularly up to the time of her death, and had not a grey hair in her head. She was born in County Cavan, Ireland, in 1792.

—The police arrested a man near Wapella, whom they suppose to be Farr, the person who escaped from Winnipeg, but on bringing him to Moosemilk a railroad official who was well acquainted with Farr failed to recognize him. The police had made a mistake and Farr appears to be as far away as ever.

—A young carpenter named Adolphus Kettleson narrowly escaped death at Calgary in the treacherous waters of the Bow. While working on the bridge he fell, struck his head on the timbers near the bottom, and being stunned by the fall, went into the rapid current of the river, but was luckily rescued.

—The condition of Mrs. D. T. S. Parnell, mother of Parnell, the celebrated Irish leader in the British Commons, who was so brutally assaulted and robbed near her home at Bordentown, N.J., last Thursday night, remains practically unchanged. Hopes are entertained of saving her life, but it is thought she will be permanently deranged. Mrs. Parnell is 85 years old.

—The plant of the Broadview Sentinel has, we understand, been bought by a Mr. T. W. Campbell, of Wolsley, to which place it has been shipped. Mr. Campbell intends publishing a weekly paper in his town, and will also print the Broadview Sentinel. Mr. Powell, the former editor of the Sentinel, has gone to Regina, where he has secured a position on the Leader.

—Now that the Prohibition Commission have reported in sections, and the cost of the force to date has been announced as over $69,000 with more to come, the country will wait with anxiety to hear of the first man whose mind has been changed on the question at issue by the costly collection of haphazard opinion. There are many kinds of political dodges which are less expensive than the appointing of Royal Commissions.—Montreal Star.

—A serious affray occurred last week at Stony Plain, Alberta, the result of an altercation over the possession of cattle. Three Russian-Germans, it is charged, made a murderous attempt on two brothers named Caldwell. A. V. Caldwell was seriously injured and now lies in a critical condition at St. Albert hospital. Josef Zuck, Gottlieb Firestein and Martin Kotschlarow have been placed under arrest by the mounted police.

TALKING ABOUT HOT THINGS.

They Are to Be Found in Maryland, Where They Know the Cards.

"Talking about hot things," said the old gambler, "you want to take a trip down to Leonardtown, Md., and see the sports in that neck of the swamp play seven up with a tender-foot. Lots of that kind of cattle go browsing down there in the summer, and after they get a fish dinner somebody is sure to run 'em up against a game where the dence always counts for the man who plays it. Well, sirs, the native most always gives the other fellow the deal, and the other fellow most generally finds enough in his hand to give one. The native plays his cards like lightning, one after another, and then draws in the stakes. His opponent wants to know what he's doing."

"Why," says the native, "I'm game. One I had, and one you gimme, and the one I orter had is three, and high, low, jack and the game is out. Ain't that right, Jack?"

"And Jack, who is looking on, says, 'Why, sure,' and that settles it." When Major Shoemaker of the famous old liquor firm of Shoemaker & Hertzog was alive, he was noted from one end of the country to the other as the most fearless gambler in the country. He would bet any amount of money on any proposition where the chances were anything like even, and he was as willing to match quarters for a big bunch of dollars as he was to play the limit on "singles" in faro.

The late John T. Raymond was an inveterate matcher of coins, and at every theater he visited he was sure to have a bout with some friend who knew his penchant. One day Shoo was in New York, and he met Raymond in the barroom of the Metropolitan hotel with a party of New Yorkers. Shoo and the comedian matched for the drinks and then for dollars. Each placed twenty dollars on the bar and removed them one by one, matching each other in turn. The luck broke about even. While the fun was progressing a message came calling Raymond away for a little while, and a young broker, who was also executor of a wealthy estate, volunteered to take the comedian's place. Of course Shoo was nothing loath, and he was gratified by a sudden change of fortune in his favor. He matched every dollar of the other, who, in turn, was unable to make his coins agree with Shoo's. The broker grew provoked and suggested an increase of the stakes.

"Let's match for $10 a go," he suggested.

"A hundred if you wish," said Shoo.

So $100 they made it. Luck ran steady to Shoo, and the news got out on the street, and a crowd began to gather. This brought the broker to his senses.

"I reckon I had better quit," he remarked. "It wouldn't do to have it said I was gambling in a public place. I'll get my revenge some other time."

Thereupon he called for a blank check and filled it out in Shoo's favor for $1,400. Three hours later that check and another $1,000 was in the drawer of the faro table at 812 Broadway, and Shoo, as cool as a cucumber, was on his way to the ferry to take the train for Washington.—Washington Post.

Directions to Correspondents.

1. Be brief and to the point. Life is short, and please remember we wish to give other correspondents a show.
2. Write plain and only on one side of paper. This will prevent you (unintentionally) sending the compositor to the "devil."
3. As time is hard only use one cent stamp; do not seal the envelope, but just turn in the flap.
4. When you are out of paper and envelopes write for more.
5. Write as often as you can—once a week anyway; mail so that we may receive copy not later than Monday night or Tuesday morning.
6. Send nothing but news. Ill-natured gossip cannot be admitted to the columns of the paper. If anything happens in your vicinity, such as a birth, marriage, death, accident, school or church event, arrival of visitors at your house or your neighbor's; in fact anything of local interest, send it to The Progress. If you are not accustomed to write for the press we will revise it.

Connected with the office is a good job printing department and any orders you may be pleased to send in will receive prompt attention.
